Outcome based education is currently preferred globally to promote educational revitalization. In education, what matters ultimately is not what is taught, but what is learned. The quality of teaching is to be judged by the quality of learning that takes place.

Therefore for each program and course we need to sensitize the teachers and students about program outcomes and course outcomes. Program outcomes describe what students are expected to know and be able to do by the time of graduation. These related to the skills, knowledge and behaviors that students acquire as they progress through the program. Program & Course outcomes are defined by the University based upon the graduate attributes. The course outcomes are the statements of observable student actions that serve as evidence of the knowledge, skills and attitudes acquired in a course. Teachers will prepare lesson plans keeping in mind the program and course outcomes and they try to attain them at the end of syllabus/examinations. During the orientation program students are briefed about PO's & CO,s and again we remind them repeatedly about po's & co's in the classroom. 2.5.1 - Mechanism of internal assessment is transparent and robust in terms of frequency and mode. Write description within 200 words.

The assessment procedure is disclosed to the students at the start of the academic year. The university implements various strategies to ensure the internal evaluation is transparent and strong in terms of frequency and method. Internal appraisal is based on a predetermined and open system involving two internal assessments for each semester, tasks/seminars, and attendance. The institution conducts two internal assessments: one after 8 weeks of classes and another after 12 weeks of classes. The outcome will be announced within ten days of the internal assessment on the bulletin board. The evaluated response sheets are given to students to understand their performance and permit them to raise objections if any. The students' progress is communicated to the parents during the teacher-parent meeting. Each semester requires students to complete one assignment/seminar, which will contribute to the allocation of internal marks. Students with valid reasons are allowed to take a retest for their absences. Surveillance cameras are installed in all classrooms to ensure maximum transparency. Students can report any grievances regarding the internal examination or assessment of answer sheets to the Internal Evaluation Coordinator.

2.5.2 - Mechanism to deal with internal examination related grievances is transparent, time- bound and efficient

The institution addresses grievances related to examinations promptly, effectively, and transparently. There is an Internal Examination Committee responsible for overseeing the conducting of examinations, result declaration, and handling student grievances concerning internal assessments. At the beginning, the students are informed about the University's regulations regarding the internal assessment system. The students are provided with answer scripts for review. If there are any factual errors, they can appeal to the IEC coordinator. The teachers will guide the students in recognizing the disparity between their performance and the awarded marks. By addressing student grievances related to internal examinations, the institution motivates students to face examinations without any fear.

2.6 - Student Performance and Learning Outcomes

2.6.1 - Teachers and students are aware of the stated Programme and course outcomes of the Programmes offered by the institution.

Competency-based education is currently favored globally to foster educational revitalization. In the realm of education, what holds ultimate significance is not what is taught, but what is learned. The effectiveness of teaching should be evaluated based on the quality of learning that occurs. Hence, it is essential to raise awareness among both teachers and students regarding program outcomes and course outcomes for every program and course. Program outcomes delineate the expected knowledge and abilities students should possess upon graduation. These outcomes encompass the skills, knowledge, and behaviors students acquire throughout their program progression. The University defines program outcomes based on the desired attributes of graduates. Course outcomes, on the other hand, encompass statements that describe observable actions by students, serving as evidence of the knowledge, skills, and attitudes acquired within a specific course. Teachers devise lesson plans with the program and course outcomes in mind, striving to achieve them by the end of the syllabus or examinations. During the orientation program, students receive a briefing about program outcomes, and we repeatedly remind them of both program outcomes and course outcomes in the classroom. The University website and college displays provide information about program outcomes and course outcomes for every course, and they are also included in the college prospectus.

2.6.2 - Attainment of Programme outcomes and course outcomes are evaluated by the institution.

The achievement of program outcomes and course outcomes is duly assessed by the IQAC to monitor the performance of program outcomes and course outcomes. The college's IQAC consistently encourages all faculty members to enhance the teaching-learning processes and adopt advanced teaching methods that facilitate the understanding of course content and active student engagement in learning. Program outcomes and course outcomes are evaluated based on participation in question-answer sessions, performance in seminars, assignments, and various co-curricular activities. The end-of-semester examination serves as a vital tool for assessing the attainment of program outcomes and course outcomes. The Continuous Internal Assessment (CIA) consists of two tests in each semester, including assignments/seminars and attendance. The students' marks are aligned with course outcomes and program outcomes. Weak and high-performing students are identified, and specific outcome achievement targets are set, recommending measured improvement. Students are assigned homework in subjects such as accounting, income tax, and costing, which aids in the evaluation of course outcomes.

The principal of the college has entrusted authority to the committees and encourages a participative approach to management by establishing various committees involving the staff and students. All faculty members are assigned to different committees, while students are appointed as secretaries. These committees are formed annually, and specific responsibilities are delegated. As a result of active engagement in academic, cocurricular, and extracurricular activities, there has been a significant increase in student enrollment and improved outcomes. This growth has prompted the management to emphasize decentralization and participative management, thereby alleviating administrative burdens on the principal, facilitating quicker decision-making, and fostering a sense of ownership among the faculty. The organization of various cultural, sports, and extension activities is overseen by different committees under the guidance of IQAC. For instance, a senior faculty member assumes the role of Campus Officer to supervise campus-related matters, while another faculty member is assigned to manage internal exams and related tasks.

Various committees operate under the supervision of the Principal and IQAC to ensure the smooth functioning of the college. These committees include the Grievance Redressal Committee, Internal Complaint Committee, Anti-Ragging Committee, SC/ST Cell, Admission Committee, Examination Committee, and others.

The college has established a Grievance Redressal cell to provide a platform for students, faculty, and administrative staff to voice their grievances. A suggestion box is placed on campus to collect complaints and suggestions, which are then analyzed by the grievance committee, leading to necessary actions. Members also have the opportunity to express their grievances during staff meetings with the Principal and management.

6.3.5 - Institutions Performance Appraisal System for teaching and non- teaching staff

The performance appraisal system for both teaching and nonteaching staff incorporates various feedback mechanisms to review and improve their performance. These include annual student feedback, which allows for an evaluation of staff performance and opportunities for improvement. Feedback from parents and alumni is also sought during meetings to identify areas for corrective measures and overall enhancement. In addition to student, parent, and alumni appraisals, the IQAC Coordinator conducts appraisals, and faculty members engage in self-appraisal using structured questionnaires. This comprehensive approach helps determine the current status, identify areas for improvement, and guide future actions. The appraisal reports are thoroughly analyzed to assess teaching staff performance in curricular and research activities, and the findings are discussed individually with staff members. The Principal takes a personal interest in providing guidance to the faculty. Based on these appraisal reports, major decisions are made, including recognizing faculty strengths and suggesting corrective measures if needed, ensuring timely increments and promotions, and encouraging participation in faculty development programs. The non-teaching staff also undergo annual appraisal through structured questionnaires, and the Principal utilizes the appraisal results to provide guidance and assign them to different roles on a rotational basis, thereby enhancing their efficiency.

6.4 - Financial Management and Resource Mobilization

6.4.1 - Institution conducts internal and external financial audits regularly Enumerate the various internal and external financial audits carried out during the year with the mechanism for settling audit objections within a maximum of 200 words

The institution conducts regular internal and external financial audits to ensure transparency and accountability in its financial operations. These audits serve as important mechanisms for evaluating financial practices and identifying any discrepancies or irregularities.

Internal financial audits are conducted within the institution by appointed auditors. They review the financial records, processes, and controls to assess compliance with policies and regulations. The internal audit report is then submitted to the appropriate authority, typically the Joint Director's office or a designated internal audit department, for further consideration. The auditors may raise objections or recommend improvements based on their findings.

External financial audits are carried out by independent auditing bodies, such as the accounts and audit section of the Joint Director's office under the higher education department. These external auditors examine the institution's financial statements, transactions, and compliance with legal and regulatory requirements. Their objective is to provide an unbiased assessment of the institution's financial health and adherence to financial standards.

In the event of audit objections raised by either internal or external auditors, the institution has established a mechanism for their resolution. This typically involves a process of review, investigation, and corrective action.

Creating a conducive environment for teaching and learning is a top priority for the college. To achieve this, special emphasis is placed on maintaining a clean and healthy campus. From the very beginning, during the orientation program, students are educated about waste management, focusing on the 3 R's: reduce, re-use, and recycle. Efforts to minimize waste and promote cleanliness are evident throughout the campus. The college adopts practices of reusing, reducing, and recycling waste materials. As part of the commitment to environmental sustainability, the campus is designated as a plastic-free zone. To facilitate proper waste disposal, blue, green, and red dustbins are strategically placed for solid waste management. Municipal Corporation vehicles are engaged in the systematic collection and disposal of solid waste.
